DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
This is a two story building of masonry laid in common bond. It is three bays wide on the first story and has one large bay containing four windows on the second story. In the first story, a plate glass window is flanked by two entranceways, the left one having a bipartite transom, and the one on the right a double door with no transom. Above the window and doors is a long, leaded glass transom which is interrupted by a brick pilaster between the plate glass window and the right door, and then resumes. Above this is a moulded cornice with a dentil row. The four second story windows are grouped in one rectangular recess. These are double hung with eight-over-eight lights, and share mullions and a common stone sill. Above each window is a small, rectangular recess with a diamond-shaped insert of stone. A bracketed cornice appears above these windows, atop which is a parapet, the larger (center) section being slightly lower than the outer sections.
